ELTC welcomes Diane Cohn new Program Manager

FORT COLLINS, CO – Nonprofit Education & Life Training Center (ELTC) announces that Diane Cohn has joined the Fort Collins-based nonprofit as Program Manager, supporting ELTC's growing computer and technology program offerings.

Diane brings with her more than eight years working in computer and network technical engineering and support. She holds a CIS degree from Front Range Community College, as well as multiple computer networking, wireless and security certificates, and a Master's Degree in another field.

In her new role, she will be responsible for growth and oversight of ELTC's computer and technology training program offerings, and tasked with propelling the growth of ELTC's computer refurbishing program to meet growing needs in the community. She will be working with local businesses in the development of customized training programs for their employees, as well as in the development of student internship and placement partnerships and job shadowing opportunities.

Diane can be reached by calling 970.482.4357. For more information about ELTC, visit the website at www.eltcenter.org.

At the Education & Life Training Center we envision a community where all are empowered to succeed through education. Our mission is to successfully mentor, train, and add to the skill sets of individuals needing to financially and / or personally transition upward in a way that is relevant, meaningful and immediately useful to their livelihood. ELTC offers employment skills and transitions training and support, as well as language and literacy coursework, to our community.
